POLICE ON THE TRAIL.

They Expect Soon to Have the Murderer of Mrs. Ahrens.

David Hampton, a Negro, is the Man They Suspect.

He Was Heard to Make Threats Against Her.

The police believe they are on the trail of the murderer of Mrs. Annette Ahrens, who was found yesterday at noon with her throat cut from the throat to the neck at 424 West Fifty-fourth street.

SCENE OF THE CRIME.

They suspect David Hampton, a negro, who lived in Mrs. Ahrens's house and whom Mrs. Ahrens is said to have charged a week ago with robbing her of $84, after which he and his wife left for parts unknown.

A Mrs. Holmes, of West Fifty-third street, in authority for the statement that Mrs. Ahrens overheard a conversation between Hampton and his wife on the night of the robbery, and that she said he "would kill the old woman if she made any fuss about his having stolen her money."

HOUSE IN WHICH MRS. AHRENS LIVED.

This door was always kept locked and a table stood in front of it on Mrs. Ahrens's side. A large sheet of yellow wrapping paper was hung over the glass part of the door, but a very small piece of this paper had been torn away, allowing a good view from one room into the other.

It is possible that the murderer gained access to Mrs. Ahrens's room some days previous to the murder and cut out this piece of paper in order to enable him to watch the movements of the old woman.

As Hampton was the only person, according to the story told by the old woman, who had ever entered the rooms of Mrs. Ahrens during the latter's absence, the police think that he must have been the murderer. The police also believe that he was the man who was heard to make threats against her.

On the forenoon of the night of the murder, Hampton was seen by a police officer on the street near the house. He was wearing a dark coat and a hat, and was carrying a bag. He was seen to enter the house and was not seen again until the next morning.

Under a Kercher of 627 Ninth avenue, who has received permission from the coroner to take charge of Mrs. Ahrens's funeral, the body was prepared for burial. The face of the deceased was so badly bruised that it was necessary to use a mask in order to prevent the face from being disfigured.

The body was placed in a coffin and was taken to the funeral home. The funeral will be held on Monday morning at 10 o'clock at the residence of Mrs. Ahrens's mother, at 424 West Fifty-fourth street.

HAPPY ARE THE SKATERS.

Thousands Flock to the Lower Lake in Central Park.

Lakes Open to Skaters To-Day.

Van Cortlandt Lake, Central Park, Fifty-Ninth street.

Prospect Park, Brooklyn.

Although the temperature has not been low enough to cover the entire surface of the big lake in Central Park with ice strong enough to bear the multitude of skaters anxious to display their skill, the lower lake, at Fifty-ninth street, was opened today to ladies and children only, and there was a rush for the park.

As early as 10 o'clock this morning at least 10,000 skaters were on the ice, and the number was steadily augmented until at 1 o'clock this afternoon the surface was covered.

The fancy skater seemed to be the only disgruntled one of the great throng. There was no room for him to execute his fancy figures.

Such an aggregation of beauty the sparrows declared was never seen in Central Park before.

Van Cortlandt Lake, on the New York and Northern Railroad, was the favorite spot of thousands of New Yorkers to-day. The ice there is six inches thick and smooth as glass.

Two or three days of moderate weather, however, will be enough to melt the ice, and the prospects for good skating will not be seriously endangered. The warm water will melt the ice, and the prospects for good skating will not be seriously endangered.

Rapid Transit Burden Thrown on the Commission.

J. Pierpont Morgan's Committee Has No Plans.

Willing to Adopt Any Ideas the Authorities May Suggest.

That the Manhattan Railway Company has come out on top as a result of the latest developments in rapid transit matters, is the universal opinion in financial circles to-day.

The proposition made by the committee of five to the Rapid Transit Commission last evening is the most interesting topic of discussion in Wall street to-day, and every one is predicting that the Elevated Company will get all it wants, and a good deal more, in fact, than it ever hoped to receive.

None of the members of the committee are disposed to talk much as yet. They evidently believe in lying low and letting matters work themselves out in a natural way.

They have thrown the burden of responsibility on the Rapid Transit Commission, which must make the first move in the matter.

George Gould, Russell Sage and Sam Sloan were all seen to-day, but they referred all inquiries as to what the plans of the company were to J. Pierpont Morgan, the chairman of the committee. He said to a reporter of The Evening World:

"We have no plans at all. We first want to ascertain what the Commissioners think is necessary for the city in the way of increased rapid transit facilities, and then we will try to conform to their ideas."

"No plans or suggestions will be offered by the company until the commission indicates what it regards as for the best interests of the city. If the plans we then offer are in any way objectionable, then we will try to come to some arrangement that will be mutually satisfactory."

"In other words, we wish to have the commission perfectly free to adopt whatever system it may see fit to recommend, and we are not at all disposed to object to it."

"The fact is, we are waiting for the commission to make its decision. We are not at all disposed to object to it."

FOR LOVE OF A WOMAN.

Etta Harrington Attempts Suicide by Shooting Herself.

"Good-by, Tell Sadie She Has Killed Me," Her Message.

She Is a Daughter of President John Haynes and Was Married.

There was no prettier young woman in Mount Vernon a few years ago than Etta Haynes, the daughter of John Haynes, then a citizen of the place and now President of the National and Mutual Building and Loan Association, of Westchester.

Today she is lying in the Harlem Hospital, suffering from a pistol shot wound in the left breast. She is a prisoner charged with attempted suicide. The wound may prove fatal.

She shot herself at midnight at the residence of her father, in West One Hundred and Thirty-ninth street, the evening which led to her attempt to kill herself.

The parents of the young woman openly charge that her life was ruined through her association with another woman.

The would-be suicide is thirty-two years of age. Nearly six years ago she was married to Frank T. Harrington, traveling salesman for a wholesale liquor house in Hainesville, Ky.

Harrington took his wife South, but the climate did not agree with her and she fell ill. She returned to New York and has lived here since, while her husband remained in Kentucky.

Her health has been broken for several years.

Mr. Haynes, father of the young woman, lives in a well-appointed flat at 18 West One Hundred and Thirty-ninth street. He and his wife are broken-hearted over their daughter's fate.

According to their statements, previous to her marriage Etta loved the acquaintance of a young woman who was named Sadie Carson.

MORE TYPHUS CASES.

Two Found at 34 Bayard Street, One on Park Row.

Up to Date Two Deaths Have Resulted from the Scourge.

Health Officials Declare They Can Stamp It Out.

Three new cases of the dreadful scourge, typhus, is the record for this morning, and it is expected that the large force of health inspectors who are out searching for victims of the disease will find more sufferers to-day.

The new cases were discovered by two of the health inspectors, one early this morning, and, as usual, came from lodging-houses.

Their names are Daniel Welsh, aged twenty-six; Lawrence Hudson, aged thirty; and Charles Tracy, aged twenty-eight.

The two former were found in the house at 34 Bayard street, where also lived John McCauley, aged thirty-eight, who went to the Chambers Street Hospital yesterday for treatment and was found to be suffering with the disease.

Tracy was found in the Oxford lodging-house, No. 104 Park Row, where Thomas Pullen, the typhus patient who went to the New York Dispensary yesterday, boarded.

The three patients were sent to the Bellevue Hospital, where the disease is in a mild form, and are all going out to-day to mingle with the general public when detected by the health inspectors.

All the houses where it is suspected that cases of typhus might crop out are under close surveillance, and the health authorities are confident that they will be able to stamp out the terrible disease before it can possibly become a pest.

Matters were very lively in the office of Dr. Roberts, Chief Inspector of the Bureau of Health, yesterday, when a number of health inspectors were present.

The rooms were crowded with Health inspectors who were given very strict instructions by Dr. Roberts.

Yesterday all the beds and bedding in the Oxford House were, by order of Dr. Roberts, packed into the health board's wagons, and taken to the crematory at the foot of Sixth street, and there burned.

The fact that many cases of typhus may make their appearance here and there in the near future, the health authorities are confident that they will be able to stamp out the terrible disease before it can possibly become a pest.

The disease, the doctors say, is in most cases of a mild type, which is illustrated by the fact that there have been but two deaths from the disease since it started, over a month ago, in the Oxford House.

The only sufferer from the disease who is reported to have died was a young man named John McCauley, aged five, who was taken from the tenement 78 Division street, together with his father, Daniel, and grandmother, Fannie, on Thursday.

Mr. McCauley is also of the opinion that the disease will be quickly stamped out.

He said the health board was never in a better condition to cope with contagious diseases.

There are many efficient doctors employed by the health board, and they attend to their duties intelligently.

These assurances on the part of the health authorities, every body is waiting for, and every body is waiting for.

Mr. Roberts gave orders this morning to have all the mattresses and bed clothing removed from the house at 34 Bayard street, and to have the fate of that taken from the Oxford House.

The place will also be visited three times this morning, and the health authorities are confident that they will be able to stamp out the terrible disease before it can possibly become a pest.

The staff of physicians appointed by the health board yesterday to inspect the tenements and lodging-houses will begin their duties on Monday morning.

The health board has a district to look after. They received their instructions from Chief Inspector Roberts to-day.
